

WORLD LEAGUE FIGHT WILL BE BITTER BATTLE

By L. C. MARTIN
United Press Staff Correspondent.
WASHINGTON, May 24.—Senate debate on the league of nations promises to be the most bitter partisan fight staged in the upper house for years.

Democrats are preparing a series of speeches to counter Republican attacks. Early next week Senator Robinson, Arkansas, will begin the Democratic campaign to stir up public sentiment which Democrats hope will force hostile senators to vote for the league covenant.

Will bring test vote
Debate on the peace treaty and the league will be resumed Monday. Senator Hiram Johnson's resolution calling for immediate presentation of the treaty to the people is the unfinished business and will come each day until it has been disposed of either by a direct vote or by being sent to the foreign relations committee.

The expected test of strength between the Republicans and administration forces, imminent yesterday over this failed to develop. It will come, however, when Senator Hiram Johnson's resolution is sent to committee.

In addition to the discussion of Johnson's resolution, which is expected to cover every phase, Senator Reed has announced he will speak Monday on the league, Robinson following him.

Johnson is preparing a speech on the league—his first—to be delivered within a few days.
Announcement by Senator Lodge that he will apply plain "if not pitiless publicity" to senate consideration of the treaty, was said today to be positive assurance that much of the discussion will be in open session for the first time in the history of treaty making in this country.

Due publicity, Republican leaders say, will provide justification for their demands for amendment of the league covenant.

LEAGUE OPPOSITION STRONGER
While the senate today took a week-end rest, the house continued consideration of the Indian appropriation bill.

The Republican committee states are now virtually complete. It is said they will show that Senators Penrose and Warren have won their fight against Progressive opposition to their being chairmen respectively of the finance and appropriations committees. The three new Republican members, understood to have been selected for the senate foreign relations committee, are Harding, Moses and New. If this proves correct, it will add three to the opposition of the league of nations on the committee which handles the treaty.

URGES ALIEN DEPORTATION
Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, has introduced his resolution providing for the deportation of L. C. A. J. Martens, the Bolshevik representative in the United States, and a number of other aliens connected with the Russian soviet bureau in New York. The resolution was referred to the immigration committee.

The senator also introduced his resolution proposing it to be the sense of the senate that the United States recognize the Omak government.

BAKERY DEADLOCK STILL IN EVIDENCE
With both sides standing firm, a deadlock still is in evidence between the striking bakers and their employers. The bakers made a compromise offer ten days ago and followed this last Wednesday with a suggestion that the dispute be referred to an impartial board of arbitration. The compromise offer remains unaccepted and the union men refuse to submit the matter to a board of arbitration.

In the meantime, the bakers and drivers formerly employed at the eight large factory bakers, who have refused an increase of $5 to $7 a week demanded by the men, are now employed at 72 smaller bakeries which have acceded to the demands of the men and which together are turning out as much bread as was formerly produced by all the bakeries. The extra bread is being baked in the smaller bakeries by working two shifts of bakers per day.

Hitchcock and Taft to Speak Together
WASHINGTON, May 24.—Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, ranking Democrat of the foreign relations committee and one of the chief supporters of President Wilson's fight for ratification of the peace treaty, has accepted an invitation from former President Taft to accompany him on a three-day speaking trip next week in the Middle West. They will make addresses at Omaha, Neb., Saturday at a state convention of peace league societies.

Brannan Acquitted of Mine Slaying
MARIETTA, May 24.—R. E. Brannan, mining man, was acquitted of a charge of the murder of Bertram Jones, miner, by a jury verdict returned late last night. The slaying occurred February 27 at the Red Cross mine, north of here. Brannan's defense was that Jones provoked a quarrel which resulted in the shooting by Brannan.

RED WARNING ON WINDOW IS TRACED TO BOYS

TRIBUNE BUREAU
SEATTLE, May 24.—"I am coming soon. Look out!" This message, discovered at 1 o'clock this morning on the window of his bedroom, caused Mr. McIntosh, 1816 Carlton street, to call upon the police for protection. Smearing over the window in red paint McIntosh saw the letters staring him in the face when he awoke from slumbers. Fearing visits of dynamiters, he called the police station.

Investigation was conducted by the police, but instead of plots on McIntosh's life, a group of youths residing in the neighborhood, possessed of an exaggerated sense of humor, were found to be the guilty "dynamiters."

With the solution of the "mystery," McIntosh wiped the paint from the window and resumed his slumbers.

POLITICAL PLOT IS CHARGED BY DAVIE
Abolition of the position of Charles Ott, twenty-five years ago, chief clerk of the city of Oakland, is to be the cause of what promises to be a spirited fight Monday before the city council. A recommendation from the city board, holding that the position is not a necessary one, Mayor John L. Davis charges that it was inspired by politics, and will oppose the removal of Ott on that ground.

"Mrs. Ott was a Baccus supporter in the last election," said Mayor Davis, "and following this, all of a sudden, the Civil Service board has gone after him. It's a funny thing that in the same meeting a salary raise is recommended for Walter Frickstad, who was a Jackson man. Furthermore, the fact that Dr. Jackson was in consultation with the Civil Service board before this recommendation was hatched up convinces me that it is a political affair entirely."

Ott was appointed to the street department twenty-five years ago by Davis, then mayor, and has ever since had charge of Oakland's sidewalk inspections. He is prominent in fraternal circles and has served through many political changes. Frickstad served under the old Mart administration, as assistant city engineer, and recently returned to the street department after serving as a captain in the engineering corps of the United States army.

LITTLE GIRL IS ADMIRER OF NEW CHIEF OF POLICE
"Is the chief in?" asked a very little girl, carrying a small bunch of flowers, she had picked in her front yard, today, as she appeared in the office of Chief of Police J. F. Lynch.

Inspector Harry Green informed her that he was in, but a bit busy for the moment. "Oh, well, I won't bother him," she remarked. "Just tell him the little girl down the street from him left these flowers." The little bouquet occupies a place of honor on the chief's desk today.

PALS MEET IN HOSPITAL AFTER ROBBER ATTACKS
SAN FRANCISCO, May 24.—William Johns and Mike Nichols, miners from Fillmore, Cal., rented a room together, and parted, each to spend the evening in his own way. Today they occupied adjoining beds in an emergency hospital.

Johns, returning to the room, was attacked in the hotel corridor and beaten and stabbed by a robber. Shortly after John reached the hospital, Nichols was found beaten into insensibility and robbed of $150 and his shoes.

Both men in their delirium were constantly asking for "my pal."

Bank Employees Fail to Identify Suspects
Employees of the First National Bank of Emeryville today failed to identify A. C. Marshall, aged 27, and H. Morris, 22, of 1018 Mission street, San Francisco, as members of the gang of bandits who on May 13 robbed the bank of $5000. The men were arrested on the complaint of a hotelkeeper whom they are alleged to have defrauded. The pair, having disappeared from Oakland on the day of the robbery, they were suspected of being connected with it.

Graduation Program for Watson School
Commencement exercises of the Carrie Louise Watson School were held last night in Ebel auditorium when Miss Ruth Janet Cohn and Miss Marjorie Gage received their diplomas from the high school and Miss Mary Tonita Hulery, Miss Ruth Harriet Skinner and Miss Marjorie Louise Swartzel from the eighth grade.

The address to the graduates was made by Peter V. Ross. Miss Cohn, Miss Swartzel and Miss Hulery were heard in readings. Music numbers were rendered by Miss Margaret Concy, Miss Irene Frost, Miss Agnes Keller, Miss Martha Keller, Miss Ethel Zimmer and Miss Margaret Kollmer.

23 Men Burned in Gasoline Explosion
BATONNE, N. J., May 24.—Twenty-three men were burned, nine seriously, in an explosion of gasoline at the Constable Hook plant of the Standard Oil Company here today. The explosion caused a fire which was still burning at 2 p. m. The flames were under control and were not expected to spread.

The explosion, of unknown origin, occurred in a tank of partially refined gasoline. Blazing gasoline shot in all directions, lighting up other tanks. The flying flames scorched all the employees near the tanks.

MARTIAL LAW IS DEMANDED IN WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, Man., May 24.—Failure of the committee which has been in conference here to agree upon a plan for the settlement of Winnipeg's general strike, today has apparently lessened hopes for an early adjustment of the situation. The committee adjourned today, day with none of the fundamental differences between employers and the strikers adjusted.

Unwillingness on the part of the union forces to accept responsibility for involving city firemen in the strike and wide divergence of opinion regarding collective bargaining are the main issues upon which the members of the committee are at variance.

With prospects of settlement of the strike still remote, military authorities are watching the situation with increased caution. Two companies of mounted police have been added to the military forces held in reserve to maintain order. A cavalry force of 1500 is now held in reserve here.

Ministers Meighan and Robertson of the Dominion cabinet, are still holding conferences with opposing forces, but as yet have made little progress toward ending the strike. The government is demanding that the government take steps to reopen the postoffice and the government telegraph systems, even to the extent of declaring martial law.

Living conditions are still far from normal, although there has been improvement. The only daily paper was printed yesterday, carrying news despatches obtained by wire. Other papers may resume publication next week.

PROTEST SLIPS FOR PAYMENT OF PHONE BILLS
Printed "protest" slips, designed to be enclosed with all telephone bills, payments under the new telephone rates, that the subscribers may be able to claim a refund if the rate is later cancelled, are now on distribution by the city. The protest slips were drawn up by City Attorney H. L. Hazan, in conformity with the advice of the Railroad Commission to the public to mark all bills "protested" and keep track of the amounts for future refund claims.

The slips may be obtained free from any firehouse, police station or city office in Oakland.

Army Cut to 200,000 by Winter Is Plan
WASHINGTON, May 24.—Steps to expedite the army bill were discussed today between Senator Wadsworth, prospective chairman of the Senate military committee, and Chairman Kahn of the House committee.

Immediate appropriations for current expenses is planned with postponement of army policy legislation. Kahn said he thought the first bill should provide money for an average "army of about 500,000 men, under expectations that the army would consist of about one million men July 1 and be reduced to 100,000 or 200,000 by midwinter."

Probation Sought by Vaccine Thief
Vincent Smith, charged with stealing a quantity of vaccine from Dr. A. H. Wright, was found guilty today and referred to the probation officer by Judge Wise.

Marvin Green and Simon Daniele, charged with selling lottery tickets, were found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $100.

Mike Lankie, accused of being a drug peddler, was sentenced to 90 days in the city jail, when he could not pay the $250 fine imposed by Judge Wise.

TRAFFIC POLICE HEAD SLATED FOR REMOVAL

Corporal Joe Wallman, chief of the Oakland police traffic bureau, president of the State Traffic Officers' Association, is slated for removal from the traffic squad, it became known today about the police station. In a reorganization of the traffic bureau now under way, Wallman will be assigned to other work, and another man, to be picked from among the traffic officers in the city, is to be placed in charge of this work.

"I have known for some time that there was an agitation on foot to move me," said Wallman, "but it has not worried me any. I can get work somewhere else if I do not like the work I am to be assigned to. If it is thought I will be more useful in some other police duty, of course, I will obey orders and say nothing."

Alleged factional political activities are said to be the cause of the switch.

DRAWN 100 FEET
Ben Alessandri, 274 East Eighth street, narrowly escaped death last night when he was dragged 100 feet by a Southern Pacific train, which struck him at the crossing at East Seventeenth street and Thirty-ninth avenue. Although bruised and cut in innumerable places, he escaped without fatal injuries, and, according to the receiving hospital physicians, will suffer no serious effects.

San Leandro Jail Is Popular Again

SAN LEANDRO, May 24.—With eight persons having occupied the San Leandro jail during the past week on a charge of drunkenness, the week has approached closer to the condition during the week following the signing of the armistice than any week during the intervening six months. No explanation of the increased consumption of "booze" is offered by City Marshal Joseph Peralta, who methodically "locks 'em up." Fifteen persons were jailed as drunks during the armistice week.

VEOMEN INITIATE
RICHMOND, May 24.—Woodmen Hall was the scene of a large gathering of members of the Brotherhood of American Veomen last night, the occasion being the initiation of a class of sixty candidates. Members initiated were for both Liberty and Olive homesteads of this city. The drill team of Liberty Homestead put on the work. Fancy drills were presented by the Oakland team. State Deputy G. W. Elliot of Sacramento was an honored visitor.

TO The Shipbuilders and Metal Workers of San Francisco Bay District

In these letters, which have been published in the daily press twice a week since February 15th, AND WHICH WILL BE PUBLISHED ONCE A WEEK, ON SATURDAYS, HERE-AFTER, emphasis has been laid on the importance to the industry and everybody in it of a thorough understanding between employer and employee.

This understanding can be reached only when both parties realize that their interests are in common; when they understand and admit that one cannot prosper without the other or at the expense of the other, and that on their prosperity depends the well-being of the community.

That this understanding has been reached to some extent is shown by the fact that in Washington today, fighting shoulder to shoulder for a square deal for Pacific Coast shipyards, are the managers of the yards and the leaders of all branches of organized labor. Back of them and in strong support stand civic and commercial organizations representing every important community activity on the coast.

Still further to promote this understanding the shipyards have decided to launch a monthly magazine dedicated to the task of breaking down the barriers thrown up by past mistakes.

In laying the keel for this publication the shipyards invite your co-operation and counsel to the end that the CALIFORNIA SHIPBUILDER may serve in fact the purpose to which it is dedicated.

It is our aim to make the magazine not so much the official organ of the industry as a forum for the exchange of ideas, the discussion of problems vital to all of us and a clearing house for anything, be it fact, fiction or philosophy, that will help us understand each other more sympathetically and do our work with a better heart and greater intelligence.

It is going to be your magazine as much as ours, and we want suggestions from you and contributions in the way of articles that will help carry us all to the port of a better understanding.

Although published monthly, there is no reason why our magazine should not be broad in its scope as the daily newspaper. There will be space in it to consider playtime as well as worktime, and in discussing shop problems the home and the family will not be overlooked.

The first number will be published next month.

Address suggestions and contributions to The Editor, California Shipbuilder, 210 Rialto Building, San Francisco.

OBEEDIENCE IS HEAVEN'S FIRST LAW Conditions of Citizenship in the Kingdom of God

By Dr. JAMES E. TALMAGE Of the Council of the Twelve, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints; Salt Lake City, Utah.

NOTE: For free copies of other articles of this series, send request to the author.

We believe that through the Atonement of Christ all mankind may be saved, by obedience to the laws and ordinances of the Gospel. (Articles of Faith, 3).

Pope's famous line, "Order is Heaven's first law," has often been misapplied. Order is a result of obedience with established requirements; of necessity, therefore, it cannot be first. It is the effect, not the primary cause. A more thoughtful generalization leads to the conclusion that obedience is the basal law of Heaven, and that this law is equally valid and as truly operative in things pertaining to mortality.

Jesus Christ, through whose plan of salvation has been made available to mankind, has described the conditions in which we may become its beneficiaries—the terms by which citizenship in the Kingdom of God may be secured.

Among these specified conditions is baptism by immersion for the remission of sins. The gross materialist, who wilfully refuses to see or to acknowledge anything beyond the affairs of earth, may ask: "How can water wash away sin?" In answer he is told, "The man of God, who is able to mankind, has described the conditions in which we may become its beneficiaries—the terms by which citizenship in the Kingdom of God may be secured."

Have you never read of Naaman, captain of the Syrian hosts, who sought relief from leprosy through the ministrations of Elisha, the man of God? Read 2 Kings, chap. 5. The prophet commanded him to wash himself seven times in Jordan, and promised that through obedience the man would be cleansed. But the haughty Syrian was offended at the simplicity of the requirement. He had expected some ceremonial spectacle of magic, a distasteful miracle. But by the counsel of his servant he went, and dipped himself seven times in Jordan, according to the saying of the man of God; and his flesh came again like unto the flesh of a little child, and he was clean. The waters of Jordan had no special virtue of healing, but obedience effected a cure from the leprosy affliction. And what of the widow whose son was sold into bondage because she could not pay her late husband's debt? She came to Elisha in agony of soul; and the prophet told her to take the little pot of oil in her house, and pour from it into as many vessels as she could borrow. With scrupulous care she complied with every detail of the instruction given her by the man of God, and the vessels were filled from the single cruet. Then she came to the man of God, and he said, "Go, sell the oil, and pay thy debt, and live thou and thy children of the rest."

Obedience is a source of power, even as is prayer. When the Jews marveled at the wisdom of Christ, He told them of a very simple and effective way to wisdom. He said, "But that which a man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself." (John 7:16, 17).

In every-day affairs we comply without question with the requirements of the results we desire. Electricity lights our homes, propels our vehicles, transmits our messages, but only on condition that we obey to the minutest detail the laws which mystic force operates. We may cause the sun-light to record in the beauties of the landscape, or the features of a friend, but only through obedience to the laws of light and the numerous mechanical adjustments incident to the use of the camera. And as we fully and unreservedly obey, the result is sure.

Why then should it be a thing strange in our eyes that through obedience to established and eternal law the higher or spiritual powers should be invoked to our service? The effect is equally sure. The Christ has given us solemn assurance: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." (Mark 16:16).

In the present age, the unalterable necessity of obedience as a means of blessing has been reaffirmed through the prophet Joseph Smith: "There is a law, irrevocably decreed in heaven before the foundations of this world, upon which all blessings are predicated; And when we obtain any blessing from God, it is by obedience to that law upon which it is predicated." (Doctrine and Covenants 130:20, 21).

And further: "I, the Lord, am bound when ye do what I say, but when ye do not what I say, ye have no promise." (32:10).

There is no element of uncertainty in the plan of salvation, far less of inconsistency or caprice in the judgment to be rendered on individual cases for that. The plan is simple. The plan is simple. Man is in a fallen condition, beset with weaknesses and sin. He is a creature whereby he may rise, and through the corridors of death and the portals of the resurrection, reach the way of eternal progression. These means are all comprised in obedience to the laws and ordinances of the Gospel. It is only by compliance with the laws of our community and nation that we have title to personal liberty and to a share in the blessings and privileges provided by the government under which we live. Shall the terms of citizenship in the Kingdom of God be less definite than in the nations of this world?

Divine authority for the naturalization of mankind in that eternal Kingdom has been restored to earth in the current age. The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints calls upon all peoples, irrespective of race or nationality, to cultivate an abiding faith in God, to turn from sin in contrite and genuine repentance, to be baptized by the authority of the Holy Priesthood, and to receive the assured companionship of the Holy Ghost through the laying on of hands.

The highest authority of the Holy Scriptures, the direct word of God to man, be it said: "There is no other name by which man can be saved." (2 Nephi 1:10).

SAMMY BOHNE, PINCH HITTER IN THE TENTH, DRIVES IN WINNING RUN WITH DOUBLE

Hack Miller Helps the Good Work Along by Hoisting One of Stroud's Shoots Over Wall

SALT LAKE, May 24.—When the Oakland team took the field yesterday afternoon against the Salt Lake Bees with Clyde Wares appearing at bat there in place of Sammy Byrne, the lad that was headed to be a sensation in the Coast League, local sportsmen and fans thought that Sammy was not doing satisfactory work for Manager Howard, and that it might not be long before he would be labeled among other lemons that came to the league. But after the tenth inning they changed their views. Oakland won the ball game from the Bees 3 to 4 in ten innings, and it to drive out a two-bagger and score Russell (Buz) Arletti with the deciding run. It was because Sammy's fielding was erratic in the first few games that he was called "the flower child." He was a kid who kind of gets peeved over such a thing and proved it by slapping out that long hit. Howard will never can Bohne for his poor fielding as long as he can step to the plate and deliver such a timely hit as he did yesterday. But it is not solely because Sammy was not fielding at his best that he was benched. The climate here did not agree with the little infidel, and Howard feared

3 Minute Journeys

Some of the oddest as well as the most picturesque customs in the world surround marriage. Those who marry now-a-days little know the pains and trials through which their ancestors entered the holy state of matrimony. For instance, in many a country place in old times a couple had to pay large fees to be married. In some towns in North Wales, as a single example, the curates used to demand one-tenth of all the wealth the man and woman possessed. But this was done away with by an act of Parliament about 1840. Yet in some parts of Mexico there still exist—or did, if the custom has very recently been changed—a marriage charge so high that regular marriages in some parts are rare among the poor.

Even the sometimes embarrassing attentions a newly married pair received in backwoods sections even of this country are now practiced no more. In fact, compared with the difficulties that attended the marriages of older days, the ease and quietness with which modern marriages are performed, makes a most pleasing contrast.

But in some country sections even of England there still persist some of the more picturesque customs. Of these the custom of chaining is perhaps the prettiest and most pleasant. In parts of Monmouthshire and Glamorgan this custom of chaining still may be found. But it isn't an actual chaining that takes place nor a mock chaining. Far from it. The couple aren't molested at all.

Villagers secretly prepare a rope of twisted evergreens and flowers or of hay and straw. This they carry under their cloaks or take to church before the service and hide. When the ceremony is over they run out ahead of the bride and groom, and with their rope or chain bar the churchyard gate.

Down the path come the happy couple only to be stopped by the flowery barrier. The groom must pay a toll before the chain is lowered and he and his bride may pass.

But this may not be the only chain they will encounter that day. If they are rich they may find their passage barred by chain after chain as they go down the village street. At each barrier they must pay toll and pass through to the cheers of the chain holders.

RHUBARB MARMALADE.
7 pounds of rhubarb.
7 pounds of sugar.
2 pounds of figs.
1 large piece of ginger root.

Cut the rhubarb in three-quarter-inch lengths and pour on the sugar. Let it stand over night. In the morning add the cut-up figs and ginger root and let boil.

BEAN SALT.
1 tablespoonful of butter.
1 tablespoonful of flour.
1/2 cupful of milk.
1/2 teaspoonful salt.
Pepper.
Paprika.

1 egg yolk.
1 slice of onion.
1 cupful of celery water.
1/2 cupful of celery water.
Paprika.

Pepper.
Cook the chopped celery in a cup of water till tender. In a smooth, clean saucepan cook together the butter and flour. When these are bubbling, add the cupful of cold milk. Stir constantly until the mixture has thickened, adding the half-cupful of celery water poured off from the celery after it has been well cooked. Then place the saucepan in hot water and continue cooking for several minutes. When smooth, velvety and well blended season with the salt, pepper and paprika, finally adding the chopped celery.

British airplanes bomb Peronne, Fricourt and Baupomme in the Somme area, also railroads and factories at Norgunlanen. Steamer Inniscarra, bound for Cork, was torpedoed and sunk with loss of thirty-seven. Germans reported to have taken seven Russian battleships at Sebastopol.

Germans say they are willing to try the Kaiser. After trying him themselves for a number of years they are just Hunnish enough to wish to pass him along.

After several reported changes in plan, the National Dry-Up Week, it appears, will start on the old date, July 1.

Kitchen Economies

By Lobel Brans

For plain dishes like a meat loaf, fish loaf or any other inexpensive combination it is a good plan to use a sauce with a delicate flavor or with some special delicacy.

A few asparagus tips or mushrooms or pimentos added to a foundation white sauce or brown sauce will change the flavor of a whole dish and make it much more palatable. Here are a few attractive sauces that can be used with meat fish or vegetables.

CELERY SAUCE.
1 tablespoonful of butter.

GARDEN BEDTIME STORY

(By Howard R. Garis)

"Baby Bunty! Oh, Baby Bunty! Do you want to come and ride in my auto?" called Uncle Wiggly Longears, the rabbit gentleman, one day.

There was no answer.

"That's very queer," said Uncle Wiggly to himself, as he twiddled his pink nose, like a gumdrop on the top of a marshmallow lollipop. "Generally Baby Bunty is only too ready to go riding with me, or make me chase her so I won't get old and stiff. I wonder why she doesn't answer now? Could have anything happened?"

The hollow stump bungalow was very quiet and still. Baby Bunty had been on the porch a little while before, when Uncle Wiggly started out to look for an adventure. Not finding any, he had come back, and now Baby Bunty did not answer when he called.

"Oh, Baby Bunty, where are you and a ride in my auto?" asked Uncle Wiggly, seemed even more quiet. "I must look for her," thought Uncle Wiggly. "Nurse Jane isn't here, either."

He hopped through all the rooms and at last, out of the back door, there he saw Nurse Jane and the little rabbit girl, who was so lively—always wanting to go out to chase her or something like that.

"Why didn't you hear me calling you?" asked Uncle Wiggly, rather put out like an extemporaneous speaker.

"Oh, no!" answered Baby Bunty. "You see, Nurse Jane is teaching me how to bake loaves of bread, and I suppose I was watching her so hard I didn't hear anything but the egg beater."

"Well," spoke the rabbit gentleman, mollified like a salubrious man, "you want to come for an auto ride?"

"Oh, thank you so much!" exclaimed Baby Bunty. "But this is the first time Nurse Jane has to show me about making bread. If I don't learn now I may never. Some other time I'll come with you, Uncle Wiggly."

Just then the telephone bell rang, and when Nurse Jane answered, and had listened a while, with the morning glory flower receiver at her ear, she said:

"Why, yes, Mrs. Fiddlefaddle, I'll be right over. I'm very sorry to hear about it."

"What is it?" asked Uncle Wiggly, curious like.

"That was Mrs. Fiddlefaddle, the cricket lady," said Nurse Jane. "Her husband, who plays the violin in the Froce chorus, popped too far and sprained his left hind leg. She wants me to come over and help her make some dandelion tea for Mr. Fiddlefaddle."

"I'll take you right over in the auto," kindly said Uncle Wiggly. "And I'll stay here and practice making bread as you have told me to," said Baby Bunty. "Don't worry. I'll be right."

"I'll come home and stay with you as soon as I leave Nurse Jane at Mrs. Fiddlefaddle's house," spoke the rabbit gentleman.

No answer. Went Uncle Wiggly and Nurse Jane. As the auto started off, Nurse Jane turned and called back to Baby Bunty:

"You'll find the rest of the flour for the bread in the tin box."

"All right," said the little rabbit girl. "Don't worry."

It did not take Uncle Wiggly very long to get Nurse Jane a ride in his Fiddlefaddle's house. He had to make the dandelion tea.

"Now I'll go back and see how Baby Bunty is coming along with her loaf of bread," thought Uncle Wiggly. "She may become almost as good a cook as I am Nurse Jane."

So he went back and saw how Baby Bunty was coming along with her loaf of bread. The P.P. and Nurse Jane later on showed Baby Bunty how to make good bread. And if the apple dumplings didn't turn out in its sleep and make the cherry pie fall out of the panny bed, I'll tell you next of Uncle Wiggly and Bunty's cake.

"Well, Baby Bunty must have finished making the bread all by herself," thought Uncle Wiggly.

Just Talks

LIFE'S GARDEN.
My dream is of a garden fair where perfect roses bloom.

Where peonies and columbine send forth their sweet perfume, In fancy I can see the yard as I would have it be.

Aglow with life and loveliness, but sorrow comes to me, For notwithstanding all the care and labor I bestow

Among the roses day by day the weeds contrive to grow.

I battle with the stubborn soil with each returning spring, New hope of conquering the tares

I have in mind a garden fair that I shall some day own, Where only beauty shall be found

And nothing rank is known. And yet, despite my hope of joy and all my visions fair

I find the burdock springing up and thistles growing there.

How like a garden is my life, how different from my dreams! Of what I hope to make of it, Is that it really seems

I pledge myself to what is best, in fancy I behold A work that I shall smile to see at last when I am old.

And yet the dream is far away, for in among the deeds That shine like roses, I can see the tangled growth of weeds.

Thought Uncle Wiggly. "She is a very smart little rabbit girl. I'll go in and get some of her fresh hot bread."

"And so will I!" said a harsh voice, for Uncle Wiggly had been speaking out loud though he hardly knew it. "I'll go in and get some of that bread myself," went on the voice. And there stood the bad Pussycat!

"Oh, you mustn't go in and scare Baby Bunty!" said Uncle Wiggly.

"Mustn't? Well, I will!" declared the P.P. Into the kitchen he slipped, with Uncle Wiggly after him. "I want some hot bread," cried the bad thing.

"Give me some before I nibble Uncle Wiggly's soul!" Oh, wow!

Your Baby Bunty was very much frightened, but she was brave. She held out a small loaf she had just taken from the oven.

"Here," she said, "take a bite!" And the P.P. had no sooner taken a bite of the loaf than he had a change of heart.

"Oh, rocks! Oh, stones! Oh, concrete and vitrified bricks! This bread is as hard as a rock!" And then he turned a back conversant out of the window, holding his broken teeth.

"Good! It's gone!" said Uncle Wiggly. "But your bread is too hard, Baby Bunty," he said, as he tried to shove a piece of bread into his mouth.

"The little rabbit girl looked at a tin box on the table," she cried. "I put a lot of Nurse Jane's talcum powder in the bread instead of flour! I opened the box and found it empty. And that's what happened. But the hard talcum powder drove me to dinner and Nurse Jane later on showed Baby Bunty how to make good bread. And if the apple dumplings didn't turn out in its sleep and make the cherry pie fall out of the panny bed, I'll tell you next of Uncle Wiggly and Bunty's cake."

"Well, Baby Bunty must have finished making the bread all by herself," thought Uncle Wiggly.

Adele Garrison's New REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

Katherine Sonnet turned a face full of which she was temporarily in this of greatly worried me as Lillian City, deranged in a mood of relaxation from the mental strain which she had just undergone, declared her intention of getting hold of my husband and of Katherine's fiancé and having them come over to dinner at Betty, Lillian's colored cook, had retired to her room in a "weezy tantum," as Lillian described it, and as a consequence Lillian had to finish the dinner Betty had begun.

"We'll make the boys help us cook the dinner, and we'll serve and eat it in regular picnic style right here in the library, Lillian said gleefully as she started for the telephone. "I don't dare leave the room unguarded now for a moment, and it will be great sport to eat up here. Don't you think so?"

I tried to make my assent as hearty as her suggestion—but Katherine's unhappy face chilled my tone. I saw that she actually was dreading the prospect of Jack's dinner, for finance and my brother-in-law, at this impromptu dinner, and my convenience smote me anew that I had so long neglected the interview I meant to have with Jack, and the scoring I meant to give him for the suffering his unreasonable jealousy was inflicting upon my little friend.

As soon as Lillian had come down to the telephone—she had none in her library—she called Betty, who sat upon absolute seclusion while she worked—Katherine came over to me.

"Tent these any way of my getting out of this?" she asked anxiously. "Jack and I had a quarrel two days ago and haven't seen him since. I can't meet him here, before all of you, dear friends as you are."

"You can't very well go away either," I said slowly, for I had the usual feminine optimism about huddling lovers' quarters when they weren't my own. "Lillian has evidently quite set her heart upon this little informal festivity."

"I know," Katherine returned. "And I am a beast to allow my own preferences to interfere with her pleasure in any way. How wonderful she is! One minute engineering delicate operations in which the very safety of the nation may be involved, and at the first chance of relaxation putting everything behind her and planning an informal frolic with as much zest as a child. I suppose that's the way she is able to keep up her strength and spirits for the crises which must come her way. But, oh, make my dear, please make Jack give you all his attention tonight. Keep him so busy talking that he won't have time to bother about me. I simply can't talk to him."

"Nothing new?" I asked, sure that I would not offend my little friend by my question—she had already weeks before confided to me that my brother-in-law was jealous of Dr. Brathwaite, the noted surgeon, Dick's brother-in-law, who was her employer, the head of the hospital unit to which she belonged, and for the business of

Sergeant John F. Nugent, Elizabeth, N. J., 165th Infantry, 12d Division

Sergeant Nugent was a despatch rider. It was his business to carry messages during battle to and from the most advanced fighting lines through shot and shell—also through gas. He was cited for three things: For his ingenuity in delivering messages of vital importance, regardless of personal danger; for administering first-aid on his trip back, and for bringing food to the advanced lines on his trips forward. He is a college graduate.

Unheralded Heroes

Physically he was a man—tall, broad-shouldered, deep-chested, a splendid specimen of a man—but in point of years he was only a boy of 15. Almost a year before Uncle Sam entered the great war he had run away from his home in Louisville, Ky., and by being about his age had succeeded in joining the army. He felt that sooner or later the American forces would be in the fight and he wanted to be along.

And a good soldier for Uncle Sam he made, this dark-haired, blue-eyed youngster, with his catching smile that won the heart of every one who saw it, and put in his own cheeks two captivating dimples.

"We have nicknamed him 'Dimples,'" said the nurse to the visitor at the hospital, who stood at a distance watching the young doughboy as he sat on the edge of his cot, swinging his legs. "He doesn't like it very well, however. He prefers to be called 'corporal.'" And a closer look showed the corporal's chevron on his sleeve.

The boy had been in the thick of the fighting from the first time that American troops had appeared on the battle lines. He had made a record for himself for his undying uncomplaining endurance of all the hardships of the life in the trenches as well as for his spirit and courage in the hours of combat with the Hun's best forces.

Up until midsummer of the last year of the struggle he had gone his way without receiving so much as a scratch, but at the utmost limit of the advance at Catigny a shell burst over him and a fragment, breaking through his helmet, fractured his skull and for seven days and nights he had laid or wandered—he could not tell which when they finally found him—out in No Man's Land.

"High explosive," he explained, when the visitor asked him about how it all happened. "Knocked my helmet right in. If it hadn't have been for that helmet, I reckon I'd a stayed right there." And his dimples showed deep in his rosy cheeks.

"But you are about all right now," ventured the visitor.

"I suppose so," he replied, shaking his head rather doubtfully, "but it seems an awful long time. I sure would like to get back with the boys in the regiment again."

GOOD ROADS PAY.

There are only a few more days in which voters may register for the bond election of July 1, at which the people of California will be asked to authorize the sale of $40,000,000 of State bonds to defray the cost of new highway construction. Every citizen of voting age should qualify to cast his ballot at this election and vote in favor of the proposition.

Good roads are a permanent profit-yielding investment for all the people. They mean quicker and cheaper travel; quicker, cheaper and wider distribution of products of the soil. They bring districts and communities directly together that otherwise would remain isolated and dependent upon circuitous rail routes and tedious, expensive and slow wagon hauls. Good roads introduce the automobile. They introduce communities touched by them to the whole world.

The federal government and the people of every State in the Union have awakened to the necessity and the utility of good roads. During the next five years the federal government will contribute about $250,000,000 to road building, apportioned on the basis of population and territory and on the condition that the States equal the federal allotment by local contribution. In addition to this work the several States have mapped out programs of road building which will involve the expenditure of about $500,000,000 during the next three years. Counting the new projects under consideration, it is predicted that approximately $1,000,000,000 will be invested in better roads between now and 1924.

California already has made commendable progress in the better road movement, having spent about $35,000,000 for this purpose during the last six years. The people of this State have come to understand the value of roads. Especially do the motorists and the business, industries and agriculturalists that must count transportation as a factor in their operations want good highways wherever they may be of service.

Road building is one of the most important items in the program of post-war construction and readjustment. It is considered an important aid in finding a place for the surplus and idle labor during the quieter winter seasons following complete demobilization of the armed forces and as a result of the shifting of labor from war industry to vocations of peace. California already has several important trunk line highways and lateral connections. But there are hundreds of other routes which need completion in order that the highway system may be efficient and adequate. Now is the most appropriate time to extend the highways.

Register now and on July 1 vote to enable the State to undertake the larger program. An abundant return will be enjoyed from the money spent in the employment of workers, increase in the production of land, better and cheaper distribution and in business prosperity generally.

TAXING SOAP.

President Carranza of Mexico has promulgated a decree increasing the import duty on unscented soap shipped into Mexico. A tax of $2.26 (United States currency) per hundred pounds must be paid on soap imports. This is over .05 pesos a pound, which is not a small item to add to the manufacturing and distribution costs, profits of producers, middlemen and retailers of soap destined for consumption by the Mexican people. It will make it impossible for a larger number of Mexican families to enjoy the luxury of soap.

But President Carranza, with characteristic foresight, has exempted from the import duty samples of soap of small size and addressed to different individuals and firms. Thus he is willing that the people under his dictatorship shall become acquainted with the virtue of soap and develop a desire for it; then when they demand it in quantity he will get revenues from its sale to enrich his treasury.

Herein is to be observed the peculiar genius of statesmanship at present exemplified at the Mexican capital. Soap is looked upon as a potential source of revenue and not as the great civilizing force that it is. There is an utter absence of recognition of the fact that cleanliness and sanitation are the inevitable fruits of education and social progress. President Carranza might be pardoned for wrecking foreign banks and looting foreign properties in his country, for scheming to float loans in the United States, for pursuing a policy of creating distrust and conflict in the American family of nations. But to deny his own people the uplifting ministrations of cheap soap, never.

THAT "LUXURY TAX."

Congress is to be commended in making the repeal of the so-called luxuries tax provision of the war revenue bill almost the first order of its business. This tax ought never to have been included in the revenue act. It violates nearly every principle of taxation and is so oppressive on the people as to make the small item of revenue it would yield not worth while.

One item of taxation under this clause is that on soft drinks. Little children and their mothers cannot buy an ice-cream soda or a "conco" without adding one or two pennies for the federal tax. A brick of ice cream may be taken home for consumption at the dinner table, but the school child who buys from his meagre small change his favorite ice-cream cone at lunch time must pay a tax. A score of other items of the tax operate in the same unjust, inequitable, annoying manner. It is not the amount so much as the harrowing process of extracting money from persons who cannot afford and who should not be required to pay federal taxes.

"Luxury tax" is a misnomer. It is an impost upon small essential comforts, family necessities, little joys of childhood. It does not touch the wealthy nor the profiteer. It creates discontent, arouses complaint, shakes public confidence in the wisdom of government. Perhaps Representative Kitchin of South Carolina, who framed the revenue bill, regards it as a mark of statesmanship. But he is sadly mistaken. It is just such a measure as might be expected from one whose provincial bigotry led him publicly to announce his intention to see to it that the people north of the Mason and Dixon line paid the cost of the war. It should be repealed at once.

One of the curious sidelights of the war with the autocrats of central Europe and their obedient subjects is a report from military authorities that the American pistol of .45 calibre is the most effective small weapon in the world. When the Yankees got to close quarters with the Hun there was never much doubt about the outcome. History already had paid a splendid tribute to the ".45." It was the faithful companion of those nation builders who shoved the frontiers westward until they reached the wide sweep of the Pacific and southward to the Rio Grande. It had already proved a great civilizer. It had enlightened misguided minds that had aspired to be autocrats of the rougher border districts and brought culture and lawful order where might and intimidation had sought to rule.

Perhaps it is not fair to say that the packers were interested in clearing a way for the home market in the recommendation that the hundred million cans of beef and the fifty million pounds of bacon, bought by the government and which became surplusage on the ending of the war, should be disposed of for export. If such a charge is justified it may also be said that it did not need to be followed; but it was, and with the arrangement that the exportation should go to the relief of the food situation in Europe. This country must come to the relief of the hungry millions over there, and it may be fortunate that there is such a prodigious reserve from which to immediately draw.

What's the use of building air castles when you can build a home and own it?

A SOLDIERS' LAND BILL.

Details of a soldiers' land settlement bill, it is reported from Washington, have been worked out at a conference between Secretary Lane of the interior department and Republican members of Congress, including Representative Mondell, the leader of the House majority. Secretary Lane did all that a cabinet officer could do to press his land settlement plan upon the attention of the last congress. Indifference, aimless talk, and general inertia, however, prevented any action in the premises. A similar fate, by the way, appears to have befallen the soldiers' land bill in England.

Canada, Australia and New Zealand have given a better account of themselves in this respect. In Canada, land boards are already functioning, soldiers are besieging their offices, and in March hundreds of former fighting men were already on the acres allotted them having received from the government loans exceeding $1,000,000. Canada no longer asks whether its soldiers want land. The question has been fully answered by the soldiers themselves.

The bill for American soldiers said to have been agreed upon in Washington gives the purchaser of land forty years in which to complete his payments to the government and provides for maximum loans of $2,000 for the erection of buildings and the acquisition of farm equipment and machinery. The soldiers are themselves to engage in the task of reclaiming land, receiving adequate pay for their work. In selecting land for their individual ownership they will have a wide choice.

So long as there is swamp land to reclaim and land to irrigate or other productive soil to make fit for cultivation it is the duty and the interest of the government to facilitate its settlement by former soldiers who may wish thus to improve their condition. The American people are glad to know that congressional leaders are taking up the Lane plan in a non-partisan, constructive spirit.—Chicago Daily News.

NOTES and COMMENT

It appears hard work for Burleson to let go. He wants a string tied to the wires and cables when they are turned back. The taste of automatic power that he has had seems to have left him so that he can't bear to see the owners of public utilities manage them in their own way.

It is worth mentioning that Alameda county has the largest fig tree of record in California—trunk 17 feet in circumference. It is growing at Mission San Jose and is venerable as well as big, being 125 years old.

A Chinese paper issued in San Francisco has taken to publishing editorials in English as well as in cabalistic signs. Showing journalistic progress in a direction not generally looked for. It comes from a desire to give Europeans an idea of the Chinese point of view as to the affairs that are assuming such great importance to them.

If it shall be decided that peddlers may wear soldier clothes it will mean a distinct letting down of that respect for the uniform that has so particularly characterized this war period. It will be realized that every man dressed as a soldier will not necessarily be a hero.

The present Congress has already won the reputation of being a body that does things. The way in which the House passed a deficiency bill providing urgent appropriations for allowances for soldiers' and sailors' families is in very marked contrast with the manner in which the previous House dilly-dallied and finally did not do it.

Senator King of Utah gives notice that he will introduce a measure for the deportation of Russian Bolsheviks. Debate on such a measure need not be very extended, it would seem. The patriotic sentiment of the country is unanimous on that point.

It illustrates the Hun character that they should begin to push American soldiers off the sidewalk in the Rhine zone as soon as the fourteen points were urged against the treaty by the German delegates and then not respected as binding by the allies.

What about the one-time Kaiser? That there has been such a manifest opposition on the part of the Germans to his trial by the allies makes the story about plotting to restore him of possible authenticity, though the project could not be of practical utility. The world will stand no more of the Kaiser sort of thing.

Whether they have industrial peace in Winnipeg or not appears to depend on whether there is an Ole Hanson there. Fumblings against disorders are not always effective, but a determined mayor with the patriotic backing which is always ready can restore order in quick time.

The need for more money for government purposes or the lack of a disposition to economize so that that which may be raised in the usual way will suffice, is causing tax levying bodies to cast about in some hawthorn for new things to assess. It is getting along toward the point where one cannot do anything or have anything that is free from the tax impost.

That tremendous effects that may result from small causes is exemplified in a Chicago instance, as related by the News. "A case of mumps is the only thing that stood between the Red Bluff high school track team and certain victory at Sutter last Saturday. Which is further proof that the destiny of the world is at the mercy of small things."

The thrifty Oregon way is exemplified in a recent case. A boy and a girl, a salmon jumping out of the river into the lap of a woman sitting on the deck of a houseboat. She is said to have remarked, "this is so sudden," but she didn't lose her presence of mind. She gathered up her skirts and kept the fish for dinner.

SPIRIT OF THE STATE PRESS

The first of many suits brought by the California Packing Corporation against Japanese tomato growers for damages for failure to furnish tomatoes in accordance with their contract was decided yesterday by a jury in department 3 of the Superior court of Alameda county in favor of the packing corporation. Damages were imposed upon S. Kato, the defendant, for the sum of $680 and costs—San Jose Mercury-Herald.

The Shriner's ceremonial at Fresno was remarkable for the large attendance, there being 102 novices to make their initial trip across the hot sands. George H. Carr, hotel proprietor of Monte Rio, made his first pilgrimage and was duly impressed by the electric study arranged by Chemist H. W. Jacobs of Santa Rosa. Ray Roks was another Shriner from here who participated in this search for an oasis in the desert.—Santa Rosa Republic.

The most startling things in President Wilson's message are his definite announcement that he will return the railroads to their owners at the end of the present administration and that he recommends the repeal of the war-time prohibition act, so far as it applies to wines and beers. For the rest, the message is beautifully written, a model of smooth and graceful English, mostly to no point and about nothing.—Fresno Republican.

Senator Johnson has been urged as a candidate for the presidency by no less a leader than Chester Rowell. Many Californians would be inclined to favor their native son were it not that success would mean installation of Rowell as secretary of state or something in the Johnson cabinet.—Hanford Sentinel.

WHERE THE LOCUSTS KEEP THEMSELVES

Where has the 17-year "locust" been keeping himself these many years?

This question is answered in a bulletin from the National Geographic Society telling of "that weirdest of all insects" which is about to emerge from its Rip Van Winkle seclusion. Incidentally the quotation marks are about "locust" since the insect known by that name is not a locust at all, but comes from the Cicada family. The bulletin, based on a communication from Dr. David Fairchild, states:

"From a tiny egg laid by its mother in a twig of your back-yard shrubbery there issues a creature which is as unlike this monster as it can be, with soft white body and mole-like front legs. It hurries to the ground and disappears beneath its surface sometimes to a depth of a hundred times its length—20 feet it is said or 17 years it digs its way around in the absolute darkness of this underworld, and then, as though by some prearranged agreement, it comes to the surface to join in a marriage revelry of a few brief weeks in summer with its kinsmen of the same generation who disappeared as it did into the darkness 17 years before. But somewhere, while beneath the ground, the mole-like creature has become transformed from the lowly larva to the strangest, actively walking pupa imaginable, and when it issues from its grave, as it were, and climbs to some conspicuous branch or tree trunk, it is a full-fledged creature of the air, though encased still in grave-clothes of parchment, but it soon splits these up the back, pulls itself out, dries its powerful wing, and flies away with the whirr of an aerodrome."

"Most insects live for a few months only, and one, indeed, the male at least, for only 15 or 20 minutes, but the 17-year cicada, the oldest of the insect world, lives as long as a cat or a dog. But what a life! Seventeen years of it in the dark and a few weeks in the sunlight. And yet, compared to the life of an angel, condemned to the darkness forever, what an interesting career!"

Whistler began the painting, and after a while announced that more sittings were required, and the finished work would be sent home in a few days. But days went months years passed, and the duke couldn't get his picture. Finally he caught Whistler in Pall Mall one afternoon, and the painter said, "I find that one more sitting is necessary. If the duchess will bring the baby to my studio in Tithe street some day next week—" "The duchess," said the duke, "will be most happy to give you another sitting. The baby, however, is in the guards"—Argonaut.

HEALTH and HADDINESS

Here Are Science's Latest Discoveries About Goitres

BY DR. LEONARD K. HIRSHBERG
A. B., M. A., M. D.
(Johns Hopkins University.)

Sir William Osler's emphatic reputation of Virchow's discovery twenty years ago that nearly "ninety-nine individuals in every hundred have tuberculous" is less startling than Professor Koerber's statement that every woman has a potential goitre and four in every five men have them. That is to say, practically everyone is on the verge of having a goitre and does have one in abundance.

If you will, even as a non-medical man, keenly look at the throats of young girls you know, a distinct kind of "fatness" will be discernible in the front of the neck. The thyroid gland, which is supposed to be small and snugly tucked in at this point, has become a bit bumpy.

A substance which looks like transparent glass or crystal gelatine, called colloid, is present in the thyroid gland. Excess of this material at certain ages will give anyone a goitre. The goitre-like thyroid gland is always bigger in fair maids between the ages of 14 and 19, as well as up to the age of 29, than in men. Whether these "physiological" small goitres become permanent or not, depends according to these new discoveries, upon the future life and accidents of the women as well as upon infectious diseases and inheritance.

It has been found that one sort of goitre is due to an over-activity of the thyroid gland, due to "allowing" nature to take its course. Later, when a goitre begins to become prominent, disorders in the internal organs and tissues are never thought of in connection with it. Yet they cause many goitres.

It used to be thought by physicians that when a great number of goitres occurred in one neighborhood, the water must be at fault. It has been recently proved, however, that the water has nothing to do with it.

Foods rich in iodine are: asparagus, garlic, pineapples, carrots, cabbage, oatmeal, whole-wheat bread, strawberries, kidney beans (red or white), green peas, potatoes (baked), pears, grapes, unpolluted rice, lettuce, tomatoes, eggplant, cucumbers, pumpkins, melons, radishes, turnips, spinach, parsley and artichokes.

Foods abundant in calcium salts are: Lemons, oranges, strawberries, pine nuts, red or white cabbage, cauliflower, onions, radishes, leeks, carrots, turnips, endive, celery, asparagus, spinach, kohlrabi, lettuce, romaine, eggs, sweet milk, butter, milk, cream, butter, ordinary cheese, Parmesan cheese and Swiss cheese.

Goitres are very apt to appear in mothers who refuse to nurse their babies.

Persons who live upon meats, who neglect to eat green vegetables or who in the winter months are prone to live upon oils and fats to the exclusion of herbs and fresh vegetables, need not be surprised to find goitres enlarging around their necks. The remedy for such goitres is to eat fresh, green garden products.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS HOLD FIELD MEET

Snapshots taken by The TRIBUNE photographer on the Oakland Technical High school grounds when 2100 boys and girls took part in a festival and athletic exhibition and contests. The program was the largest any high school in the United States ever attempted. The girls of the school are shown here weaving some of the intricate figures that made the playground a scene of wonderful attractiveness.

Oakland High school girls held their first annual track meet this morning in the playgrounds of Mosswood park. Five schools were represented by more than 400 young women who upheld the honors of their particular alma mater. The event was arranged by the recreation department of Oakland in answer to the demand of the feminine athletes, who asked that they have the same opportunity of testing their prowess in the open field that their brothers have. The High School Girls Play Day is the official title which has been given to what will probably become an annual affair.

The High schools which participated were Oakland Technical, Vocational, Fremont and University. The boys' band from the Technical furnished the music.

Each school sent a group of girls to present the folk dances. A silver cup was awarded the school whose young women displayed the greatest neatness, best general appearance and most correct posture during these two events.

Tennis, baseball, archery, discus, basketball, volleyball and hockey afforded the competitors interest from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m. The greatest enthusiasm was found in the baseball games, which were played by Fremont vs. Technical and Oakland vs. Vocational.

Technical girls did some good work with the bow and arrow and Fremont showed skill with the discus. The school leaders were out in full force and contributed toward the final victories.

OTHER GAMES PLAYED.
A demonstration game of hockey was played by the sophomore vs. the senior girls in Miss Ransom's school, guests of the Oakland High schools. Oakland vs. Technical and University vs. Fremont tested their skill on the basketball court.

Edward Holbrook, Silver King, Is Dead
SAN FRANCISCO, May 24.—Edward Holbrook, multi-millionaire owner of the Gorham Company, the largest manufacturer of sterling silverware in the world, died at his country place in Stamford, Conn., yesterday from a complication of organic trouble. Holbrook was 70.

As a salesman for the company, Holbrook gained his first step on the ladder of the huge corporation when he sold the Shanon estate silver plate for the then new Palace Hotel here. This order totaled $70,000 and was the largest ever given by a hotel in point of value.

A basis for modern comparison is the orders for silverware given by two New York hotels, the Biltmore and Commodore, recently. The figures approximated $500,000 and $700,000 respectively.

Improvement Work for Streets Ordered
New street improvement proceedings are under way today, following the adoption of resolutions by the city council. Among the work ordered is the improvement of Halliday avenue from Seventy-third avenue easterly; Brookdale avenue, sidewalked; Thirtieth avenue and East Twenty-third street, sidewalked; Thoda avenue, improved; Forty-eighth avenue, improved; East Fourteenth street sewer completed and other small repairs made.

A petition has been filed by the Garfield Civic Association for the improvement of the Foothill boulevard. This has been referred to the street department.

POLICE SEE JOKER IN MYSTERY HUNT

SAN FRANCISCO, May 24.—After an extended search for the blood-stained yomanette's uniform that was said to be near the old Alexander Russell home on the Ocean Highway, and after the lists of yomanettes in this district have been gone over and none found missing, the authorities are at a loss to explain the mystery, unless the entire affair is a hoax.

The grounds about the old home were searched carefully by naval and police investigators. It had been reported that Miss Theodora McCarthy, a sailor's daughter, had been seen near the old home, and the story was sent to the intelligence office.

After the neighborhood was thoroughly gone over by the searchers, the naval authorities inspected the records to ascertain if any yomanette was unaccounted for. Mounted Policemen Clarence Burns, George Duncan and Charles Hanley, together with coast guards assisted in the search, from Fort Funston to the Cliff House.

Municipal Power Is Los Angeles Issue

LOS ANGELES, May 24.—Negotiations leading to the purchase of the Southern California Edison Company at the price of $11,000,000 by the municipality are expected to be begun with the arrival here of Edwin O. Edgerton, president of the Railroad Commission. The absorption of the utility to public ownership will probably be made the subject of a referendum vote at the election June 3. Mayor Woodman favoring the purchase of the company.

Bring Soldiers Home, Says Kahn Tells of Trips Made to Battlefields

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Bronzed and looking the picture of health, Representative Julius Kahn is home from Europe.

Kahn immediately took charge of the House committee on military affairs, of which he is chairman. He gave out the following interview:

"During the two months that I spent on the continent of Europe I visited the battle areas of France, where American troops participated. I cannot repeat too often that our soldiers were not mere men—they were supermen."

"No one can go to Cantigny, where we started with our own units, and Chateau Thierry, Verdun, Berry le Sac, Belleau Wood, Vaux, Mezy, Jaulgonne, Peres on Tardenois, Flammes and the other points in the Soissons-Chateau Thierry salient without admiring the tenacity, the valor, the boldness and the undaunted spirit of our men."

"There is no denying the fact that at the time we really entered the war, which was toward the end of May, 1918, thirteen months after the war revolution passed Congress—thirteen months which were required for the preparation of our entrance into the struggle with our combat troops—the French and the English were in a very serious condition. They had been doing a great deal of hard fighting, and I would not in any way detract from their achievements during the four years when they held the line against the enemy."

VIEW OF FIELD.
"To fully appreciate the dangerous character of the terrain and the splendid positions occupied by the Germans one must survey the field in order to gain an adequate conception of what our men did there. The same is true of the Meuse-Argonne battlefield."

"In my opinion, what contributed to the success of our army was the fact that our troops were allowed to fight as an American army."

"It was a matter of common knowledge that the English and the French desired our divisions to be used practically as replacement and depot divisions. To the credit of General Pershing, he it said, that he always insisted that our men must fight as an American army under their own officers. I was told by men who ought to know the facts that at one time the relationship between General Pershing and the commanding officers of the allied forces was exceedingly strained on account of the insistence of Pershing for an American army. Therefore, he deserves the credit for having brought about the situation that enabled our troops to fight as an American army."

"The American soldiers were exceedingly anxious to return home. They feel they have performed their work well. They feel that having performed it they ought to be brought home as speedily as possible. I fully concur with them in that feeling."

"I do not understand the intrigues, the chicanes, the jealousies, the hatreds, the ethnological and racial differences that exist in Europe. We do not understand these peoples and they do not understand us. It is a matter of common knowledge that the dislike for the Americans is constantly growing in Europe. And the American soldiers do not hesitate to say that they are not enamored of the Europeans."

WANTS SOLDIERS HOME.

"Under the treaty of peace we are asking for nothing, nor do we receive any indemnities of any kind. They go to the European countries. I do not see why American soldiers should be kept in the occupied areas to serve as collection agents for the countries of Europe. Nor in my opinion has the time come when we ought to act as the world's policeman. I believe that the peace treaty ought to be published in full in order that our citizens may thoroughly study it and understand it before the Senate finally acts upon it. It contains 208 pages of printed matter. I am told that it goes into detail on many subjects, and we ought to know something of those details. We ought to know what disposition is to be made of German cables. It is exceedingly important for our future commerce and our political welfare that an all-American cable connection be re-established in Europe. At present all our cables news comes to us through sources."

AH JECK AND OPIUM TAKEN

The house of Ah Jeck, presumably a Chinese, but her at 231 Eighth street, was raided last night and a quantity of opium found. Ah Jeck was taken to the city jail and held in $400 bail. The operatives of the state pharmacy board making the raid believe Ah Jeck to be the wholesale narcotic dealer for whom they have been searching for the past several months.

In the company of Ah Jeck another Chinese, posing as a cook and giving his name as Ah May, was arrested. Ah May is believed to be a peddling working for Ah Jeck. His bail has been set at $200.

That are controlled by foreign countries.

"It was rumored in Paris that of the captured German vessels of war, England sought to have allotted to her seventeen capital ships and sixty destroyers. France was to have an allotment of seven capital ships and forty destroyers. We, according to that rumor, were not bested to receive any capital ships at all."

"If any such distribution is contemplated, the American people ought to rise in wrath against such an outrage. It would be better if the entire German fleet were sunk to the bottom of the ocean than that such a distribution be allowed. President Wilson and Secretary Daniels both expressed an opinion that we ought to have, and asked for legislation, to give us a navy second to none in view of the fact that the other countries are receiving the tangible benefits arising from the victory of the allies and the associated governments. It would be an act of splendid appreciation to turn over the entire German navy fleet to the Government of the United States in recognition of our part in winning the victory."

EMPIRE DAY TO BE CELEBRATED

Empire Day will be celebrated today throughout Great Britain and all her colonies and by the British colonies of foreign countries. Under the auspices of the British societies of San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda, Richmond and San Mateo a grand pageant, "The Liberation of Jerusalem," with more than 500 performers, will be staged in the Civic Auditorium at San Francisco tonight.

The pageant represents the main events in the history of Jerusalem, culminating with the entry into the Holy City of British troops under the command of General Allenby, December 10, 1917. The pageant will be followed by dancing on the floor of the auditorium.

The patrons of the celebration include Acting Consul-General Gerald Shepherd of England, chairman of the evening; Consul-General of France, Notter, Consul of Italy (O'Connell), Consul of Belgium (Dixon), Mayor Ralph, John Lawson, Sir Robert Maffour, Mrs. Japha Clements, Mrs. P. Nutter Cox, George Watterson and Walter D. Collier.

MERRITT WINS! SALOONS WILL CLOSE JULY 1

"I'll bet any money," announced Deputy City Clerk Frank Merritt today in the city council chambers, "that every saloon in the state will be closed July 1."

"Never!" shouted half a dozen proponents of "wet" conditions at once. "Why? The President's against this July stuff, and everyone's against it—etc., etc."

"Put up the money!" demanded Merritt.

Money was forthcoming—plenty of it.

"You fellows have all lost," remarked the city clerk's deputy, after the last bet had been placed. "You see—July first is election day and they always close the saloons on election day!"

That's why a crowd of wrathful betters are following Merritt around today, demanding that he cut off the rashly placed bets. Merritt, so far, insists that they stand until after election.

PRIZE-WINNING BABY FILMS READY

All those who have seen the pictures of the 400 babies entered in The Oakland TRIBUNE Motion Picture Baby Exposition, which have been exhibited at the American Theater during the past three weeks, are now anxious to see the prize winners.

The motion pictures of the 25 babies whom the judges decided were entitled to the various prizes offered in the several classes, filmed a few days ago at Lakeside Park, have been developed, printed and assembled and all is in readiness for their first public showing at the American this afternoon.

The winner of each prize will be shown with the award on the screen, and the name of the individual or firm that presented the prize will appear prominently on the screen.

These pictures will be shown Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Owing to the numerous demands from the public, the complete films will be shown Monday and Tuesday at the American Theater at 2 p. m. This is in addition to the regular program.

FREE COUPON of admission will be printed in The TRIBUNE tomorrow morning.

This coupon properly filled out and presented with one paid admission will admit one child free to special showing of the complete film of the Oakland TRIBUNE Motion Picture Baby Exposition, Monday matinee, May 26, or Tuesday matinee, May 27, at 2 p. m. at the American theater.

Hog Promotion Man Arrested, Is Report

SAN FRANCISCO, May 24.—Accused of having misappropriated the funds of the Swine Breeders' Association, a cooperative, profit-sharing venture with a ranch at Mountain View, D. H. Riker, organizer and manager of the concern, missing since March, when a warrant was sworn out against him, is reported as having been located by a Victorian marshal who is returning him to this city.

The shareholders in the association have applied for a receiver. The assets amount to $2,800, although it is claimed many thousands of dollars investments were made in the company.

STOCKER CASE DELAY; CROWD DISAPPOINTED

LOS ANGELES, May 24.—A disappointed crowd which had packed the courtroom was turned away from Superior Judge Rives' court today when the judge ordered the case of Albert Snyder of San Francisco against Clara Baldwin Stocker, his mother, continued until Monday.

Snyder is suing to have his mother declared incompetent. The crowd was drawn by the hope that more of Mrs. Stocker's letters, which yesterday convulsed even the judge, would be read.

Twenty-four letters in all have been offered in evidence. As they are presented, Mrs. Stocker, eyeing the attorneys through her $30,000 diamond ring, added to the interest with startling side comment as a rule she "stood pat" on the statements in her letters.

"My Irish pal has cut out booze," read a letter written from Chicago. A little later it said:

"I have been dancing the tango and have lost about ten pounds—he is a fine dancer and full of it—Just my kind."

"I had to send for McNab to settle up with the crew of her yacht," another letter said. "I gave him a fine time. We had some fine dances together. He is a dandy dancer—he had the time of his life."

Still another letter said:

"Walter is going to have his bath. Will ask him to write a few lines. Walter just passed down the hall dressed up in my pink silk night-dress and hat. He was sure a dream."

Mrs. Stocker explained that "Walter" was Walter T. McGinley, her business manager.

"I have two large bedrooms and parlor," she wrote from the Waldorf-Astoria in New York. Only $50 a day. President Wilson had these rooms."

SAN FRANCISCO, May 24.—Although Attorney Gavin McNab refused this morning to comment or reply to the charges made against him by Mrs. Stocker, it became known from other sources that the disagreement between McNab and Mrs. Stocker, which later led to his suit for $75,000 for breach of contract, was a result of his refusal to countenance the transfer of oil property, valued at $1,500,000, to Walter McGinley.

This property, according to oil operators here, is netting Mrs. Stocker's business manager $70,000 a month from oil leases, and he is maintaining offices in the Hewitt building, Los Angeles, under the name of the McGinley Oil Company.

Mrs. Stocker has retained Francis J. Heney as her attorney to defend the suit brought by Attorney McNab.

Witness "Drunk" So Jury Softens Verdict

Because the complaining witness, John C. Johnson, was too drunk to see when his watch disappeared, according to the testimony, and therefore unable to say whether some one took it from his pocket or whether he dropped it, Polayaro Alvarez, a Mexican Indian, accused of taking it, was found guilty of petty larceny only by the jury in Judge Quinn's department yesterday afternoon. He will serve six months in jail. The charge against him was robbery, on which the jury refused to find him guilty.

National Ice Cream Pure and Good

Scientists Have Proven Food Values

- 1 Qt. Milk Equals 3 lbs Fresh Cod

PRESIDENT AID TO MARKETS

no responsive quarter was there a disposition to postpone the consideration of events at the peace conference, but to further strain on the economic situation prevailing in the countries of the entente allies.

Butterfat in iron and steel was accompanied by a general forward movement in textiles and leathers, stronger conditions prevailing in the former, unchanged in the latter. Copper, were the only shares to lag, but traders and authorities reported steady absorption of trade supplies.

FIRST STONE OIL TANKER READY SOON

The first concrete oil tanker designed by the shipping board will be launched at Government island early in June, according to an announcement by Captain Harold D. Hyndyds assistant in charge of concrete ship construction. After the installation of engines she will be turned over to one of the California oil companies and used first for coast trade and then between this coast and foreign ports. The new tanker is 7500 tons deadweight.

The hull of the vessel is almost completed and workmen are beginning to remove the framework building mold. The vessel has no resemblance to the Faith, which was the first concrete ship built. The new ship is 50 per cent larger and has none of the box or barge lines.

her shape following the appearance of the big steel ships.

MAY REPLACE STEEL TANKER

If the cost estimates of the experts were not too low the new tanker will replace the steel tanker provided she proves as efficient as expected. It was estimated that she would cost $145 per deadweight ton as against $225 per deadweight ton for the steel ship.

Puffed brick was used for the concrete mixture and on account of its lightness it is not expected that the new ship will weigh more than

The ship has eighteen tanks to carry 6400 tons of liquid cargo, in addition to four tanks which will carry the bunker oil for fuel under the four Foster water-tubed boilers which will generate steam for 2800 horsepower reciprocating engines.

The engines and boilers will be placed amidship.

MANY BULKHEADS.

Two longitudinal bulkheads run the entire length of the ship. There are thirteen transverse bulkheads. It is believed that every compartment will be watertight, but before launching they will be tested by filling the tanks with water under high pressure. The concrete will be covered with spar varnish, which will be forced into the material by a gun operating under hundreds of pounds of pressure. When completely ready for the water she will not look unlike a steel ship.
